A Million Feet or More.

To do a business of any size It's necessary to advertise, For how else would the people know The benefits we would bestow?

How could they know that our big store Spreads o'er a million feet or more, Unless we bring it before their eyes? And this we do, by advertise-

How would they know that we expose Ladies', childs' and misses' hose, At prices away down, down, Below any they will find in town ?

For our embroideries, that beat them all, Many would not know to call : So of our laces, how could they tell That not elsewhere could they do as well

Our corsets! how unkind 'twould be, Not to invite the ladies, -see? Embrace the form, with a charm, Gentle as a lover's arm.

Our dress goods are so charming, nice, The ladies all should see and price, They'll so enjoy the lovely sight Sweet dreams will follow in the night.
